

Department of Chinese as a Second Language

Contact Information

Contact: ZHANG, An-qj
Tel: +886-2-7734-3629
Email: tcsl@ntnu.edu.tw
Website: <http://www.tcsl.ntnu.edu.tw/en/>

Introduction

The Department of Chinese as a Second Language features two undergraduate programs, Program of Chinese Language and Culture for International Students, Program of Applied Chinese Language and Culture, a master's program, a Ph.D. program and several interdisciplinary programs, including Program of Bilingual Education for Children, Online MA Program in Teaching Chinese as a Foreign Language and an IB educator certificate programme: Chinese Language Education.

Faculty in the department are internationally known scholars who specialize in Chinese linguistics, Chinese syntactic studies, Chinese language pedagogy, cognitive sciences, and overseas Chinese communities.

Instructional Objectives

In response to the globalization of Chinese language and culture, the Department of Chinese as a Second Language is committed to nurturing talents for both the communication and teaching of Chinese language in a global context. It is our objective to enhance communication between East and West, and to ensure peace in the world, as well as the welfare of all.

Degree Requirements

Required credits for our programs:

Bachelor Programs: 128 credits

M.A. Program: 32 credits

On line M.A. Program: 24 credits

Ph.D. Program: 21 credits

Feature of the Curriculum

This department aims to cultivate international human resources with advanced Chinese language proficiency and cross-cultural communication skills. Through comprehensive and innovative coursework, hands-on experience, and research projects, our students explore the ways and means of teaching and learning Chinese.

Career Prospects

Chinese teachers

Employment at organizations related to Chinese language and culture

Professional translators and interpreters

Coordinators of cultural/commercial exchanges

Bilingual guides in the international tourism industry

